Rhone

Though it looks just like several other meat market boites, this very strange wine bar only pours vintages from the Rhone region of France. A lively pick-up scene has already coalesced around the concept. There's also a limited menu that's uniformly excellent, including a bountiful charcuterie platter, salad of artichoke bottoms and white asparagus sided with sauced slices of pig belly, meaty lamb shank, and a lively bouillaibaise with chunks of lobster, plump mussels, and crisp-skinned red snapper. Only the cheese course bombed. Try to snag one of the four tables on the no-smoking balcony. (Robert Sietsema)
